Welcome, or as we say here, Degemer mat!

MUST SEES OF THE PINK GRANITE COAST!

Located on the Armorique coast road in Plestin-Les-Grèves, the Hogolo thermal baths are a remarkable testimony to the Gallo-Roman presence in Brittany: a living history book that lets you follow the daily journey of the Romans in their ablutions. In addition to its historical interest, the site offers a very beautiful view of the Bay of Locquirec.

The stairs of Brelevenez connect the town centre to Brelevenez church (12th century) offering a breathtaking view of Lannion. Pretty houses were built in the 19th century all the way up the 142 steps!

The Pointe de Bihit in Trébeurden offers a magnificent view of the Bay of Lannion. The orientation table enables you to locate the different towns surrounding the mouth of the River Léguer reaching as far as the start of the Finistère Coast.

With the rhythm of the tides, Ile Grande reveals its different facades and makes the many surrounding islands accessible or not. A 7 km-long coastal path, signposted GR34, takes you around the island in about two and a half hours.

Presqu'île Renote in Trégastel is a protected natural area housing numerous pink granite rock formations, as well as the characteristic fauna and flora of the coast. During your walk, you will have an unobstructed view of the Sept-Îles Archipelago, Ploumanac'h Lighthouse and the Château de Costaères.

Penvénan is home to the seaside resort of Port Blanc. Here you'll find the Chapel of Notre Dame which sits at the top of a flight of stone steps worn by time, and in the heart of the village you will be charmed by its narrow streets and fishermen's houses.

Make your way to the Castel Meur chasm in Plougrescant where the waves and sea spray batter the rocks and offer an incredible spectacle to behold.

The Saint-Tugdual Cathedral in Tréguier is a magnificent building dedicated to one of the seven founders of Brittany, the Welsh monk Tugdual. You will be impressed by its size, ceilings, stained glass windows, numerous statues, rich furnishings and its charming cloister.

The Sillon de Talbert in Pleubian is a geological marvel unique in Europe, a long, natural jetty of sand and pebbles. Combining walking, wildlife observation and breathtaking landscapes, this nature reserve offers beautiful surprises and delightful nature walks!

The Léguer Valley, which connects the Monts d'Arrée to the Lannion estuary, is a natural jewel home to remarkable biodiversity, including the European otter and the Atlantic salmon. Classified as a Natura 2000 site since 2004 and labelled Site Rivières Sauvages (Wild River Site) in 2017, it offers a rich architectural and natural heritage, with fountains, mills and walking paths suitable for all activities.

The Vallée paper mills, established on the banks of the Léguer since 1855, were once a major industry in Brittany, and the Kernansquillec hydroelectric dam, built in 1920, marked the extension of this activity. Today, the removal of the dam and the repurposing of the paper mills creates an encounter between industrial history, the arts and the environment.

In Loguivy-Plougras, the Beffou Forest or 'the residence of beeches' is an expansive woodland steeped in history! Once a metallurgical site, this forest features an ancient Roman road and is home to one of Brittany's longest covered alleys: the Brohet alley. Spanning 630 ha, it is also the highest woodland in Brittany.

TIME TO RIDE THE WAVES

Brittany is a destination of choice for sea lovers thanks to its spectacular tides and favourable winds. Whether you are looking for adventure or simply a relaxing moment, you will surely find an activity or excursion that suits your needs.

Explore hidden creeks and beaches in complete tranquillity aboard a kayak or paddleboard. Learn to sail and navigate along the coasts and around the islands. Enjoy the Breton waves for surfing or kitesurfing, or dive down to discover our seabed using fins and an oxygen tank, or a mask and snorkel.

Prefer to keep your feet dry? Try sand yachting! No matter your age or ability, all our sailing schools and nautical bases are here to provide you with a unique experience in complete safety.

Prolong the experience and treat yourself to an excursion aboard a speedboat or a traditional sailboat.

Head to the Sept-Îles archipelago, the largest seabird reserve in France and admire the coast scattered with granite, or enjoy a peaceful trip around the islands at sunset. On the rivers, sail with the current and let yourself be lulled by the tranquil landscapes, between conserved nature sites and picturesque villages. These outings, ideal for all ages, offer a chance to relax and disconnect, and are perfect for exploring our natural and maritime heritage differently.

THE INHABITANTS OF THE WATER

The Pink Granite Coast offers a fascinating spectacle of marine landscapes and remarkable biodiversity. On the foreshore – this beach area uncovered at low tide – life is teeming with crabs, shrimp, shellfish and seaweed. Seabirds, such as oystercatchers and gulls, feed there, demonstrating the importance of this ecosystem.

Fishing, whether on foot or at sea, is an integral part of local life. On the foreshore, clams, mussels and razor clams are picked with care, while offshore, fishermen are catching delicacies such as sea bass, bream and lobsters. Rivers, like the Léguer, offer fish-rich waters. Fishing there is highly regulated, migratory fish such as salmon and brown trout are among the protected species. Nearby, the Sept-Îles archipelago is a sanctuary for thousands of seabirds, including common puffins and northern gannets. Accessible by boat, it is also home to grey seals. At Île Grande, the League for the Protection of Birds (LPO) works to safeguard this fragile fauna. This site is a must for exploring the natural treasures of the region while raising awareness of their conservation.

NATURAL TREASURES TO EXPLORE

The Pink Granite Coast is renowned for its classified natural sites where sea and land harmoniously intertwine.

The Sillon de Talbert Nature Reserve, the Léguer Valley, the Sept-Îles archipelago and the Plounérin Nature Reserve are all gems that offer spectacular landscapes and are abundant with exceptional fauna and flora.

The region is traversed by rivers and interspersed with heaths, marshes and forests, perfect for quiet getaways. The waterways wind between the woods and meadows, harbouring rich biodiversity, while forests such as Beffou offer footpaths ideal for walking.

For lovers of botany and beautiful landscapes, the remarkable gardens of the Pink Granite Coast are unmissable. These true havens of peace showcase local and exotic plants in an explosion of colours and scents. Our gardens are enchanting places that beckon you to wander and lose yourself in quiet reflection. In the heart of Pleumeur-Bodou, the Saint-Samson golf course is a wonder for sport and nature lovers. This 18-hole course, designed in an exceptional setting, offers various technical challenges for golfers of all levels. Located on the heights, it offers a breathtaking view of the sea and the surrounding moors.

AN EXPLOSION OF FLAVOUR

The flavours of the sea blend with the produce of the land, elevated by the talent of local restaurateurs and chefs.

Among the specialities to discover, the oysters of Plougrescant, the shellfish of Landrellec and the mussels of Trédrez-Locquémeau will delight seafood lovers. The taste of the sea is also found in dishes using freshly caught fish, such as sea bass or pollock. Don't miss the inescapable buckwheat pancakes (galettes de sarrasin or blé noir), served with generous fillings, and for sweet treats, let yourself be tempted by a slice of far breton or kouign-amann. The chefs of the Pink Granite Coast make a point of showcasing these products. Our establishments, Michelin starred or not, offer unforgettable gastronomic experiences in enchanting settings. ## THE EXCELLENCE OF OUR PRODUCERS

Every product has a story, and every encounter with an artisan or a farmer is a door opened to a passion rooted in respect for the land.

The small producers of the region play a central role in the vitality of the local gastronomy. At the farms and local growers, you can find organic vegetables grown with care, farmhouse cheeses with authentic flavours, or artisanal ciders made using traditional methods. Many sell directly from the farm or at weekly markets, creating a unique bond between consumers and producers.

To go even further, some local businesses open their doors to visitors, offering fascinating immersive experiences. Distilleries, breweries, cider works, or even biscuit factories offer guided tours and tastings to discover exceptional products. Finally, a must in the region is a visit to an oyster farmer. It will open your eyes to the finer details of oyster farming and you can taste ultra-fresh products, straight from the sea.

BRETON TRADITIONS: LOUD AND PROUD

Our region beats to the rhythm of its festoù-noz, these musical evenings where traditional melodies harmonise with lively dances. The Printemps des Sonneurs in Lannion is a fine example, each year bringing together the greatest bagadoù (pipe bands) of Brittany.

Meanwhile, the pardons – religious festivals deeply rooted in Breton culture – offer a unique sound experience. The processions, the sacred songs and the blessings create an atmosphere imbued with spirituality. The pardon of Saint-Yves in Tréguier is one of the most famous, attracting thousands of pilgrims every year on the third Sunday in May.

Whether you are a fan of traditional music, in search of a spiritual experience, or simply looking for a pure moment of conviviality, the Pink Granite Coast draws the crowds with the richness and diversity of its festivals and concerts.
